Concepto

El Trastorno delirante es una condición mental psicótica que incluye mantener una o más ideas delirantes en ausencia de cualquier otra psicopatología significativa.

En particular, la persona con trastorno delirante no ha cumplido nunca los criterios para la esquizofrenia y no tiene alucinaciones marcadas, aunque pueden estar presentes alucinaciones táctiles u olfativas si éstas están relacionadas con el tema del delirio.

Criterios
A. Síntomas característicos	Ideas delirantes, ilusiones, lenguaje desorganizado (p. ej., desacuerdos entre lo que se dice y lo que se hace), comportamiento catatónico o gravemente desorganizado, alteración del sueño, y cambios drásticos de humor.
B. Disfunción social/familiar	Desde el inicio de la alteración, una o más funciones principales de la persona en el trabajo, las relaciones interpersonales o el cuidado de uno mismo.
C. Duración	Persisten o aparecen continuamente durante al menos 1 mes.
D. Exclusión de los trastornos meroconditivos y del estado de ánimo	El trastorno esquizofénico y el trastorno de personalidad dependiente de los demás no se han descartado debido a:
E. Exclusión de consumo de sustancias y de enfermedad médica	Si hay historia de trastorno adictivo o de otro trastorno de personalidad que se ha diagnosticado anteriormente, se deben considerar las alteraciones también si manifiestan durante al menos 1 mes.
F. Relación con un trastorno generalizado del desarrollo psychiatrists use therapies that combine different and varied therapies and strategies. There is mental illness that does not imply observable anatomic alteration, and whose main characteristic is that it affects the personality of the individual as well as the areas of his psychology. Because of his insidious beginning, his gravity and his disorganization, it is an easy subtype of diagnosing, but difficult to treat. If the MDRUG Special Drug Actuation quickly notified by someone familiar, you can provide your schizophrenic relator with a new one of medications more adapted to prevent you from being able to be possible. In addition, this allows the psychiatrist to control daily treatments and manifestations of paranoid schizophrenia. Clinical manifestations consist in a mixture of signs and hallucinations that are present there is an important period of a month, with some of the signs of disease persisting for 6 months, in schizophrenia. He feels crushed and desperate easily. With the appropriate medication for this subtype, less container rushes and the worsening can be avoided. Now, what happened when, despite the medication, do you do self-discharge, do you mind others, or suffer from very strong delusions? In addition, it must be informed about your disease. So treat every new episode is getting more complicated, the patient suffers more and more and schizophrenia gets stronger in us. These can go unnoticed by lack of communication and both with family members and with MSpecialDrug. Hospitalization, usually and once diagnosed, these patients are treated with several anti-psychotic drugs. Another common problem that affects schizophrenia is the high risk of developing a coexisting problem of drug dependence and alcohol consumption or other type of Xicos Tá³. The specific episode of this disease have a tendency to be repeated. Complications that lead to retro-compliance with the medicinal can be prescribed by the specialist. You should try to delay or prevent the known cycle from the "return and back" door. Family therapies The process of On the part of the family is part of one of the most striking principles during the treatment process. Sentiment of special mission in life. Among schizophrenics there are high-day disease of physical diseases due to psychiatric treatment (such as collateral drugs) and life conditions associated with chronic incapacity. These aspects are largely worked out from occupational therapy workshops, where you are looking for the most appropriate activity for each patient (cognitive activities to improve memoria, attention, concentration ...) or motor or psychomotor activities to improve coordination, but also aspects such as posture and the physical state of patients.

psychotherapeutic interventions continue, but are not as structured as in the acute phase. It is the most serious subtype, your innence is usually early and insidious. Negative symptoms consist of a limitation of the scope and intensity of emotional expressions (affective leveling), a reduction in the productivity of thought and speech (alogia), anecdonia and a reduction in the beginning Object-oriented behavior (Abulia). But an error in this stage of disease may have irreparable consequences for the subject in question. Stress is usually an important factor in your appearance. All this further increases the possibility of a schizophrenic patient. They are not clear and inconsistent. The specifications depend on the stage of the disease or the characteristics of the patient own. à €œDirectives of clinical practice: treatment of schizophrenia.â €™ s very common that the family tells him that he was already a little communicative person, a rare person, who had very little contact with people'. Important problems to reduce hospitalization Å³ Å³ It has been demonstrated that each release the patient becomes more vulnerable to his disease and the possibility of a new release. He feels he can not leave the house. But the reason for this depression and why, in the last analysis, leads to the suicide are very varied. The objective of family therapy is to facilitate the interaction in positive terms between the members of the family of the patient identified and the patient identified, promoting synergies that favor, and do not make it difficult, the positive evolution of symptomatology described as problematic. The diagnosis of schizophrenia is done when one or two symptoms appear in the presumed patient through repeated episodes with variable frequency over a month or more. Symptoms affect various psychological processes, such as perception (hallucinations), ideas, verification of reality (delusions), processes of thought (loose associations), feelings (affective application, inappropriate affection), behavior (catatony, disorganization), attention, concentration, motivation (abulia, commitment of the intention and planning and planning) and judgment. [3] FUNCTION. IMPORTANT It is also the convenience of the number of times that the individual has to take the medicines, since for some medicines they have to be several times a day and others only once. Cognitive therapy and recovery There are two types of therapies for the cognitive recovery of the patient. The biological, interpersonal, social and cultural factors that determine the patient should be known. The person is unable to start a behavior focused on an end, which makes her need support to carry out daily life activities, such as tidying up, dressing or preparing food. Stage It is a prolonged stage in which the symptoms are negative and there may be reaction similar to the psychotic stage of Florida. To regulate the chemicals that must be supplied it is very important that the patient has regular medical control, then affirmed to adjust the treatment, keep well or have protection to face vital tensions. In order to prevent these relapses, it is necessary for the patient to receive professional guidance and help from psychologists and specialist methods. It is an uncomfortable language and it costs a lot to follow the thread of conversation. Apparently, they intervene genetic, psychological and sociocultural factors. [Name required] The most frequent age of appearance is between 15 and 35 years, although there are also cases of advanced age and affects both sexes equally. Prevention of relapse One of the first ways to prevent relapse is to take the prescribed medication without interruption (since its interruption, although not complete can lead to a worsening of the disease). Depending on the frequency of episodes, the psychological characteristics of the episode and the severity, schizophrenia is diagnosed and determined as a type.
